RUSS TERMS TO BRITAIN FINAL, SAYS SOVIET HEAD

Moscow Now Awaiting Fresh Proposals From London

ZINOVIEFF NOTE

Authenticity Cannot Be Admitted, He Asserts

(Reuter's Service)

Moscow, Nov. 27.—M. Rykoff, the President of the Council of Commissars, speaking at a textile conference, referring to the abortive Anglo-Soviet Treaty, said that if Britain eventually made fresh proposals the Soviet would not refuse to discuss them but the concessions already made were the maximum. The interests of both countries necessitated finding of means for liquidating the Zinovieff letter incident and for establishing normal relations but the Soviet was unable to admit the letter's authenticity.

M. Rykoff declared that the resumption of diplomatic relations between France and the Soviet would enable them to regulate a whole series of questions of foreign policy.

Referring to the economic strength of the Soviet, M. Rykoff said that if there were no falling off in economic revival two years hence they would no longer need to negotate loans because loans would be offered to them.

U.S. Navy Vessels Leave For Manila

The Black Hawk, United States navy submarine tender, was got away yesterday for Manila for winter station. The Hart and Rizal, destroyers which have been in northern waters for the last several weeks, left Monday for Manila. The Huron, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, and the General Alava, Admiral Washington's yacht, are the only American navy vessels in the river at present. The Huron, it is understood, will remain here about three weeks before going to Manila.

FATHER LENFERS, LINCHENG HERO, SERIOUSLY ILL

Priest Who Interceded For Bandit Captives May Return Home

Father William Lenfers of the German Catholic Mission at Lincheng, Shantung Province, who figured prominently in the news dealing with the Lincheng bandit outrage of May, 1923, is seriously ill and may be forced to return to his home. He has been ill for practically ten months, due, according to report, to exposure and anxiety in connection with the assistance he rendered to the foreign and Chinese captives of the bandits.

Father Lenfers has been in China for many years and owing to his knowlegde of conditions in this part of Shantung Province was able to render considerable assistance in connection with the supplying of food to the bandit captives while they were held in the Shantung mountains.

NO DECISION REACHED AT SITTING OF OPIUM MEET

Japanese, Americans, South Americans, Are Heard

U. S. SUGGESTION

Proposals Advanced By America To Be Debated

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Nov. 27.—No decision was reached at today's sitting of the Second Opium Conference, which heard the views of the Japanese, American, Uraguayan and Bolivian delegates. The last named declined to agree to the restriction of the cultivation of coca leaves which, he declared, did not influence the cocaine market.

The Japanese delegate reiterated the necessity of a competent, international organisation, independent of government control of the world's opium requirements.

The conference tomorrow will discuss the American suggestion that the production and distribution of raw opium and coca leaves should be controlled, also a proposal to prohibit the manufacture and distribution of heroin.

CHARMING DREAM PROVES TO BE BAD ONE FOR WRITER

Sub-Editor Discharged After Publishing "Indecent Matter" In Newspaper

Mr. Waung, sub-editor of The New World Journal, was left in charge of the sheet while Mr. Woo Veh-doo, editor, took a trip into the interior.

Mr. Waung wrote a story of a phase of life, heading it "Charming Dream in a Peach Garden."

His inspiration was of a high degree but his handling was slightly off technique, Mixed Court indicated yesterday when Mr. Woo, the editor, appeared for printing indecent matter.

Mr. Woo said he had already discharged the sub-editor and had published an apology to his reading public.

Because he had acted so willingly when police called on him the court let him down with a personal bond to refrain from "publishing indecent articles" and a warning to have his name published in his newspaper as editor in compliance with laws of the Republic.

Mr. Maitland prosecuted on behalf of the police, while Det. Insp. Givens, Translator Loh and C.D.C's. 76 and 92 proved the case.

Article 8, the bit of law governing newspapers, requires the owners of publications to furnish in each issue the name and address of the printer, publisher and editor. The Court suggested the decision to all newspapers under its jurisdiction. Police said they would.

Sir Charles Bell Urges Direct Dealings Between Great Britain And Tibet

Volume Based On Twenty Years' Official Connection And Personal Friendship With Dalai Lama Will Shortly Be Published

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 27.—Sir Charles Bell's "Tibet Past and Present," based on 20 years' official connection and personal friendship with the Dalai Lama and leading Tibetans, and dedicated to the Dalai Lama, will shortly be published.

Sir Charles, discussing British policy, urges Great Britain not to conduct Tibetan negotiations with China without the presence of a Tibetan representative. Any peace treaty between China and Tibet should embrace reasonable boundaries as regards Outer Tibet, its autonomy and the exclusion of Chinese soldiers or any attempts at Chinese colonisation.

Sir Charles Bell advocates direct dealings between Great Britain and Tibet in matters of mutual concern, reasonable facilities for British trade and the maintenance of the existing frontier between Tibet and North-East India. Great Britain should prevent Chinese agents entering Tibet from India until China and Tibet come to terms.

Pointing out the financial difficulties in Lhasa in view of the need to support a new army, Sir Charles criticises the continued British insistence of free trade across the border, contending that Great Britain should agree to the Tibetan imposition of a Customs tariff on moderate and clearly specified lines, by which means justice would be given and money found for Tibetan needs, which are also India's needs, for when Tibet acquires the means of defending herself, she defends India.

Also, inter alia, Sir Charles considers that unless British troops are retained in India and frontier politics remain under British control, Tibet will break away from Indian evironment. Nepal, Bhutan and Sihkim are also unlikely in such a case to continue in partnership with India, but may become unfriendly —perhaps actively hostile.

POLICE START WAR AGAINST UNDESIRABLES IN SHANGHAI

Loiterers Within Settlement Jailed And Then Expelled

30 CHINESE UP

Court Deals Harshly With Petty Thieves

Police of the International Settlement have inaugurated a strong campaign against undesirables within the city.

More than 30 Chinese were before Mixed Court yesterday, charged with larceny, burglary, and being undesirables.

The court dealt harshly with the men, giving sentences of from three months to a year with expulsion at the end of the sentences.

The special campaign is the result of the unusual number of robberies and larceny cases in the settlement. More than a score of robberies have been reported this week. Last week's total was above a score.

Many of the men being picked up by police are found to have returned to the city from previous expulsions because of crimes of months or years ago. These men get slightly heavier sentences before the court.

The police are not waiting until robbery is committed. Any man found loitering without visible means of support is [illegible] taken before Mixed Court and given [illegible] expulsion. Police believe this the best method of eradicating the crime wave.

Sian Ah-pan drew the heaviest sentence yesterday from Mixed Court with a five year term and expulsion at the end of that period. Sian has eight previous convictions on his record. His burglaries included houses at 22 Myburgh Road, 84 North Thibet Road, 107 North Soochow Road and 202 North Thibet Road, extending over a period of two months.

Seventeen men picked up as undesirables were given varying sentences.

Larceny cases, most of them petty thievry, comprised the remainder of the cases before Mixed Court.

PEKING REJECTS RESIGNATION OF FENG YU-HSIANG

Mandate Calls On 'Christian General' To Resume His Command

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Another mandate, referring to General Feng Yu-hsiang's resignation, says that "General Feng has rendered much valuable service to the country and even though the situation has improved, how can we allow him to quit his post?" It is therefore hoped that General Feng will do his best to carry out his functions in order to assist the overcoming of the present difficulties and his resignation is, therefore, rejected.

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Nov. 21.—A considerable amount of discussion occurred at Tientsin before the title Chief Executive was selected for Marshal Tuan. It was suggested in the first place that as the "Tsao Kun Constitution" would not be permanently suspended (?) the title President should not be assumed. It was also pointed out that Dr. Sun Yat-sen claims to be Generalissimo of China and so that title was ruled out in order to prevent confliction with Dr. Sun's claims.

Hankow, Nov. 28.—Rumor has it that Brigadier-General Kiu Ying-chieh, Commander of the 2nd Mixed Brigade of Hupeh troops, which are now stationed in Honan, today declared his neutrality, refusing to obey Marshal Wu Pei-fu's commands.

It is also reported that Marshal Wu has requested General Hsiao Yao-nan, Tuchun of Hupeh, to despatch reinforcements to Honan but that the latter has declined to comply with the request on the ground that Honan, Kiangsi, and Szechuen, are at present in a dangerous position.

Paris, Nov. 27.—Telegrams from London say that the opinion expressed in certain French circles that the intervention of the League of Nations in the Anglo-Egyptian crisis is desirable is not regarded in British official circles as representing the views of the French government. The latter indeed has informed Mr. Baldwin and the cabinet that it desires to do nothing which might be contrary to British interests.

Annual French Toy Fair To Be Opened Thursday

Preparations for the annual French toy exhibition and sale are now going forward rapidly and an advance peep at the Casino which has been erected at Verdun Gardens on Avenue Joffre especially for the show is sufficient to show the great care and attention that have been given to the exhibition.

The Fair this year will be held from Thursday, December 4th to Sunday, December 7, inclusive, from 3 to 7 p.m. Interest in the exhibition, now a regular yearly pre-Christmas event in Shanghai, is general, both because of the lovely toys offered for sale, and because of the aim of the fair which is to aid destitute families, especially those with numerous children.

It will be remembered that last year the exhibition, conducted under the auspices of the Alliance Nationale Francaise, was held in an Alsatian Village. This year the committees decided to erect matsheds in the form of a large Casino, such as is sometimes found in Brittany, and to carry out the scheme of a Breton village.

DANCING PAVILLION

Entrance is effected through winding paths with real grass underneath the feet, banked with growing flowers, and with face borders of natural greenery. The center of the building is given over to a dome-ceilinged dancing pavillion where a good floor has been laid. The ceiling is terra cotta, with decorative motifs of flowers, and just underneath is a series of frescoes of Brittany coast scenes in blue and white. Through the lattice work openings one comes again on the winding paths to the toy stalls. At one end of the hall is a great garden space, planted with palm trees and filled with lovely growing things. Here are wonderful big swings for children and a "chute" down which they can slide. At another end is a great canvas scene, depicting a part of the Brittany coast line. The illusion is strengthened by the great masses of rocks that are piled up in the foreground, and the lighting effects which make the canvas painting seem quite real.

The toys have not yet been put in the stalls but they are in the Casino, boxes and boxes of them, of every imaginable variety. The dolls are particularly fetching this year.

Besides dancing, the music for which will be provided by a good orchestra, there will be a cafe where refreshments may be had for adults. On the night of the 11th there will be a costume ball.

MAKE-UP OF COMMITTEE

The committee on arrangements, of which Mr. Wilden, French Consul-General, who just returned home is honorary president, is as follows: Messieurs Meyrier, acting-consul; Le Bris, Faurrez, Sibiril, Garderin, Darre and Dr. Vallet. With the idea of providing the maximum of comfort for visitors, the committee has secured many large stoves to keep the place well-heated.

Monsieur Nablas, the French Municipal Council architect, assisted by Messieurs Sarthou and Mayol, is responsible for the building and the decorations, while M. Goussomeaume, superintendent of parks and public places in the French Concession has had charge of the greenery and flowers. The Electricity Department of the French Municipal Council is taking care of the lighting arrangements.

Children in costume will be admitted to the fair free of charge. Other children will be required to pay an entrance free of only twenty cents, while the charge for adults is $1.00. Tickets of $1.00 will be sold in booklets of ten or five tickets, which the children may use for their games or for their "shopping."

Social Success---Opening Of New American Club

'Twas a social success—the opening of the new American Club yesterday.

The boys gathered around the more essential parts of the new club, work on which had been rushed through, and toasted the new quarters.

After the health of the club itself was drunk the members started drinking to the future happy days of individual parts of the club house and some even went so far as to try to drink toasts to bits of furniture—anything for an excuse.

And after that they all trooped upstairs to the fifth floor dining room and had tiffin, some of the members of the building committees trying out the private dining room for the first time and pronouncing it good.

It took considerable hard work on the part of the personnel to get all things running smoothly by yesterday morning but it was done even if Secretary O. H. Smith did get only two hours sleep in as many days.

Members found the bed rooms ready for guests, the dining room and kitchen were working smoothly and the bar and barbershop were going good.

Other sections of the club will be functioning within a few days. The mah-jongg room was not quite finished yesterday. The library had a few books on the shelves.—Lenfers ist ex-Cabinet Ministers, today adopted a resolution protesting against a declaration of Ziwar Pasha to representatives of the foreign press in which, inter alia, the Premier said that he hoped to come to an agreement with the British in regard to the waters of the Nile.

The resolution declares that the statement savors of fear on the part of the Egyptian Government —"fear that the people in no way feel." The nation, says the resolution, does not ask for an arrangement with regard to the waters of the Nile: it insists on the rights of Egypt in the Sudan. The resolution also protests against the Government's consent to the withdrawal of Egyptian troops from the Sudan and against the arrests of deputies. It expresses the opinion that in allowing such action the Ministry accepted the British attack on the Constitution, and declares that the acts of a Government which has not faced Parliament and has not obtained Parliament's confidence, are null and void and impossible of ratification by the country.

ARMED ROBBERS STEAL $720 IN RAIDS ON SHOPS

Home In Frenchtown Entered By Burglars; Clothing Is Stolen

Two more armed robberies, in one of which $200 was stolen and in the other $520, appeared on the police records yesterday.

Four men, all armed with pistols, entered a gold broker's shop at 55 Woo Foo Loong in the Louza district and, after disconnecting the telephone, stole money and jewelry valued at $200. The men were on the premises for an hour, but no outcry was raised by the inmates.

Another gang of four men, one of whom had a pistol, stole clothing and jewelry valued at $520 from a tailor's shop at 1060 Broadway. There were ten persons in the place at the time, but none attempted to resist the outlaws.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Drake at No. 139 Rue de Grouchy was entered by burglars early Thursday morning and a number of articles including considerable clothing was stolen. The robbers entered the house through the servants quarters in the basement.

Pierre Henry Talks To American Woman's Club

Mr. Pierre Henry, member of the International Labor Office of the League of Nations, in Geneva, who has been in China for some time studying conditions in the factories here, and who made a tour of Japan for the same purpose, spoke before the Civic Department of the A. W. C. yesterday. Mr. Henry's talk was on "International Labor Organisation," which was set up by a clause in the Paris Peace Treaty at one of the institutions of the League of Nations for the purpose of securing by international action the adjustment of conditions of labor throughout the world to the requirements of justice and humanity.

The work of the organisation is interesting, one of the outstanding features being the conference of the representatives of the members, that is, of the states belonging to the organisation, which is convoked once a year. There are, at the present time, fifty-seven states in the organisation. All states, regardless of size, have equal rights at the conference, and each is represented by two government delegates, one employers' delegate and one workers' delegate.

Five conferences have already been held; one at Washington, one at Genoa and three at Geneva. The first conference adopted six draft conventions dealing with the following questions:

1. The application of the principle of an eight-hour day and a forty-eight hour week.
2. The question of preventing or providing against unemployment.
3. The employment of women before and after childbirth.
4. The employment of women during the night.
5. The minimum age of employment of children in industry.
6. The night work of young persons employed in industry.

Six recommendations were also adopted:

1. Concerning public employment exchanges.
2. Concerning reciprocity of treatment of foreign workers.
3. Concerning the prevention of anthrax.
4. Concerning the protection of women and children against lead poisoning.
5. Concerning the establishment of Government Health Services.
6. Concerning the application of the Berne Convention of 1906, on the prohibition of the use of white phosphorus in the manufacture of matches.

The second conference adopted three Draft Conventions:—

1. Concerning the age for admission of children to employment at sea.
2. Concerning unemployment indemnity in case of loss or foundering of the ship.
3. Concerning facilities for finding employment for seamen.

Four recommendations were adopted at this conference:—

1. Concerning the limitation of hours of work in inland navigation industry.
2. Concerning the limitation of hours of work in inland navigation.
3. Concerning the establishment of national seamen's codes.
4. Concerning unemployment insurance for seamen

The third conference adopted seven draft conventions:—

1. Concerning the right of association of agricultural workers.
2. Concerning workmen's compensation in agriculture.
3. Concerning the minimum age of employment of children in agriculture.
4. Concerning the use of white lead in painting.
5. Concerning the minimum age of employment as trimmers and stokers at sea.
6. Concerning the medical examination of children and young persons employed at sea.
7. Concerning the weekly rest in industry.

Eight recommendations were adopted:—

1. Concerning the development of technical agricultural education.
2. Concerning the prevention of unemployment in agriculture.
3. Concerning social insurance in agriculture.
4. Concerning night work of children and young persons in agriculture.
5. Concerning night work of women in agriculture.
6. Concerning the protection of women in agriculture before and after childbirth.
7. Concerning the living conditions of agricultural workers.
8. Concerning the weekly rest in commercial establishments.

The fourth conference, in addition to formulating a number of amendments shown by experience to be necessary in the constitution of the International Labor Organisation, adopted one recommendation:—

1. Concerning statistical and other information regarding emigration and immigration.

The fifth conference adopted one recommendation:—

1. Concerning the general principles for the organisation of systems of inspection to secure the enforcement of the laws and regulations for the protection of the workers.

The sixth conference, which will meet in June, 1924, will consider:—

1. Development of facilities for the utilisation of workers' leisure.
2. Night-work in bakeries.
3. Equality of treatment for national and foreign workers as regards workmen's compensation for accidents.
4. Weekly suspension of work for twenty-four hours in glass-manufacturing processes where tank furnaces are used.

Mr. Henry answered many questions regarding his experiences in China which were put to him by members at the close of his talk.

The Civic Department had a short business session following the program.

The resignation of Mrs. R. J. Smith from the post of department secretary was announced and the appointment of Mrs. Paul Brown to fill the place approved. The department discussed plans for the Community Christmas Tree and voted to donate $100 toward it with the understanding that support from other organisations would be forthcoming as about $500 is needed for the pageant which is international in character and in no way to be considered as a strictly American enterprise.

Letters of thanks from the Army "Y" were read, expressing the appreciation of the sailors and marines for the books, magazines, phonograph and records donated by the club during the recent state of emergency in Shanghai. The question of Christmas charity was also discussed but no action was taken, the matter being postponed for another meeting.

BALDWIN PLANS FORWARD POLICY ON AGRICULTURE

Conference Of Landowners And Farmers And Workers Proposed

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 27.—A forward agricultural policy is foreshadowed in an official announcement stating that the government is convoking a conference of landowners, farmers and workers with government co-operation to recommend methods to maintain and increase arable land and stimulate a maximum production of food.

The announcement declares that the conference should aim at the addition of at least one million acres of arable land but should not give undue attention to the production of wheat to the exclusion of livestock, dairying and other agricultural activities.

BANDITS SLAY EVANGELIST IN RAID IN HONAN

Further Details Are Received Regarding Capture Of Rev. Mr. Anda

Further details regarding the capture by bandits of the Rev. Arne Anda, Norwegian Lutheran missionary near Sichwan, Honan, are contained in a letter received yesterday by THE CHINA PRESS from Mr. F. Fredricksen, of the Norwegian Lutheran Mission at Sichwan.

"Rev. Anda was captured by bandits in a raid on a town 30 li east of here early yesterday morning," Mr. Fredricksen writes, under date of November 19. "The bandits have taken their captive to an unknown destination.

"The mission has an out-station at the place, which was thoroughly looted. The bandits shot and killed the evangelist and wounded his wife.

"Rev. Anda went to the place the day before the attack took place. The bandits attacked the town suddenly, having marched the whole of the night. Nobody knew anything of their plans until they were in the streets and escape was impossible.

"The other missionaries at Sichwan, Mr. and Mrs. Fredricksen, are safe."

ENDOWMENT INSURANCE — WHOLE LIFE INSURANCE
Unimpaired Assets
GOING without life insurance is placing a great burden of risk upon your family and your enterprises. Carrying as large a line of insurance as you prudently can will often save to your estate much more than the amount of insurance itself. It will turn equities into unimpaired assets.
WAITING until you "can afford" more insurance entails hazards that the prudent, serious-minded person will avoid. We can be of real help to you in working out an insurance plan that will cover your needs. Without obligating you we shall be glad to discuss it with you upon request.

This issue is the 14th year of publication. The cover was specially designed by Mr. F. W. Wilson of Shanghai and the story, "A Bald-Headed Coot," was contributed by Mr. Albert E. Miller of Hankow. This year's issue is replete with a wealth of bright reading matter and amusing drawings with local color.

The plaintiffs allege that Jose de la Cruz and Rosa Asuncion, awarded first honors, should have been disqualified because they fell twice, one of the partners, feeling dizzy, having taken off the floor. On this theory, the plaintiffs claim they should get the first prize because they also smashed the world record. The winners were promised, in addition to the cash prize, an auto or its equivalent in cash P1,800, the complaint avers.

THREE KNOCKOUTS IN BOXING BOUTS AT THE CARLTON

Benny Forral Stops Alberto In Sixth Round Of Main Event

Last night was kayo night at the Carlton, such as has not been observed for some time past. In the main event Benny Forral surprised many by the remarkable fight he put up against Pete Alberto, the high-class Manila boy, and capped the climax by knocking him out in the sixth round with a punch to the short ribs. The blow quite knocked the wind out of Alberto, and, though conscious, he failed to rise for the count of ten, his heart or lungs apparently having been affected by the blow.

This was the conclusion to a program in which three of the four fights ended with knockouts. The curtain-raiser was between Romulo and Young Garcia, and was scheduled to go four rounds. The advertised length of the contest, however, was sadly exaggerated. The first round was hardly started when Romulo hit Garcia and Garcia hit the floor. That was the end of Act 1.

The second event, between Frieco Peralto and Charlie Xavier, was the only one which went the scheduled distance. It was a pretty good scrap, with Xavier, outweighed several pounds, putting up an excellent battle. Peralto's advantage in size, however, counted for much, and he had the best of the fighting at times. A draw decision was handed down.

The semi-final was between Pete and Hilardo, and Pete did his best to earn his moniker of "Terrible." There was no science to the affair. First Hilardo would slam and then Pete, or vice versa, and the other would dodge or duck and then do his best to land a fierce wallop, which usually hit nothing but the air. Each landed a few times, however, and they kept bravely at it, figuring that one of those awful haymakers would sooner or later land and have the intended effect. Pete started the claret going from Hilardo's proboscis early in the fight, but outside of this there was no great harm done until the sixth inning, when Pete started things off with a rush which Hilardo responded to by forcing Pete half-way through the ropes. Then Pete landed a vicious wallop on Hilardo's tummy which paralysed the other boy, and a finishing tap sent him down for the count and a little more.

FORRAL FORCES FIGHT

The main bout, between Alberto and Forral, was an excellent contest so long as it lasted. Benny put up a splendid exhibition, and in fact quite outdid himself, forcing the fighting from the start and having the best of the opening round, as well as portions of the following innings.

Forral started with a rush, but Alberto soon responded with a couple of his husky wallops. These, however, Benny took, and with right and left jabs beating a tattoo on Alberto's head carried the fighting right along. There was a fair amount of infighting, in which Forral got the best of it.

In the second round there was more mixing. Alberto shot across his dangerous left swing, but Forral came back, and after a minute or so again began landing lefts and rights, some on Alberto's head, but as many on his arms and shoulders. The fighting was in general pretty even, as also in the following round, when the head-to-head pose, started in the latter part of the second stanza, continued, the boys pressing their front hair together and doing their best to land some hard ones. A couple of times they broke away, and Forral kept pasting lefts and rights to Alberto's head. Alberto got through with a few, however, which pretty well balanced things, having a bit more steam than Benny's taps. Benny, however, drew first blood with a jolt on Alberto's nose.

In the fourth Alberto started off well, landing two lovely left wallops which considerably troubled Forral. Benny kept on, however, and continued landing his short jabs to Alberto's face and head, beating a regular tattoo which evened things up a bit.

In the fifth, after a little open fighting, the boys started the head to-head work again. Benny landed more frequently than the other boy, keeping at him hot and heavy all along. Alberto came back pluckily, but Benny had the best of it in this session.

THE KNOCKOUT

The sixth round started off well. After a moment's sparring Alberto for his clean-cut victory.

ST. JOHN'S TEAM DEFEATS SOOCHOW IN COLLEGE PLAY

Keen Struggle At Soochow For Intercollegiate Leadership

By virtue of their victory over Soochow University on the College grounds at Soochow yesterday afternoon, St. Johns further established their claim as the most serious contenders for the Far Eastern Inter-Collegiate Championship of 1924.

Glorious weather favored the match and a big crowd were fully rewarded by witnessing a keen struggle for the full ninety minutes. In the opening half, the home team quite held their own against the fast forwards of the visiting team and St. John's goal was in danger on several occasions. The Soochow forwards displayed great dash but their final efforts in front of goal were weak. St. Johns came dangerously near scoring when Wo Zung-wo hit the crossbar with a rasping drive but the interval arrived with a blank sheet.

Upon resuming Soochow were soon on the mark and their persistent efforts were rewarded after ten minutes play, when their outside left pounced upon a weak clearance by the visitors' left back, and easily netted. This reverse must have acted as a tonic to St. Johns, for thereafter they took possession of the game, and within twelve minutes equality was restored when Kyoong Zau-wo got through with a long drive from the left wing which the Soochow goalie made no attempt to save.

Four minutes later St. John's took the lead following a pretty center from the right wing which Toong Pok Zoe took in the stride and neatly placed beyond the helpless goalie. To complete the discomfiture of the home team the St. John's center forward, Toong Siao-kee, again scored after a brilliant individual effort. This completed the scoring, though the visitors were still pressing when the final whistle blew.

St. John's have a very evenly balanced side and their display in the second half was indeed worth going miles to see. Their great strength lies in the halfback line, and in Wo Zung-wo, their center-half and acting captain, they have a footballer who would not be out of place in any local foreign side.

On the other hand, Soochow were weak in their intermediate line. Their forwards were good in the first half but they failed to stay the pace; and this was another point in St. John's favor.

Mr. K. S. Voong, of Yates Academy, Soochow, proved a capital referee.

St. John's meet Shanghai College next Saturday and Nanyang play Fuh Tan this (Saturday) afternoon at Fuh Tan.

CHINESE LEAGUE BASKETBALL PLAY STARTING TONIGHT

All-Whites Meet All-Blacks In First Official Game Of The Season

The Shanghai Chinese Basketball League season will be officially started tonight at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. by a game between the All-Whites, last year's champions, and the All-Blacks.

Seven teams have joined the League this year, the All-Whites, Fuh Tan University, Amateurs, All-Blacks, Y.M.C.A. Day School, Southern University, and China National College. St. John's University and Shanghai College decided not to play this year, owing to conflict with the football season.

The Oil-Whites, last year's champions, retain nearly all of last year's players, and expect to repeat their splendid record of the past season. Other teams have been considerably strengthened this year, especially Fuh Tan and the Amateurs, and two new entries, Southern University and China National College, are reported to have pretty good teams. So a very close and interesting season is looked forward to.

It has been suggested that the champion of the Chinese League meet the leader of the Foreign League at the end of the season and play for the championship of Shanghai, and this may be arranged.

Tonight's match starts at 8 o'clock, and a good crowd is expected to see last year's champions tackle the All-Blacks, who showed up well in the practice games recently played.

PING-PONG FINALS

The finals in the Shanghai Chinese Ping-Pong Union tourney will be played between the Wah Yi and the Chinese Amateurs teams tonight at No. 6 Barchet Road. An admission fee of 20 cents will be charged.

MEMORIAL TO CHANCE

Baseball's "Peerless Leader"

Chicago, October 31.—The directors of the Chicago National League Club (Cubs) announced today that they intended to erect a fitting memorial to Frank Chance who died on September 15.

Frank Chance was one of the best known managers in major league baseball. He lead the Cubs to four National League victories in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1910, and to two world championships, 1907 and 1908. In 1912 he retired from professional baseball to live on his orange grove in Southern California, but the following year returned to the game as manager of the New York Americans (Yankees). After one year as manager of the New York team he again retired on account of ill health and remained out of major league ball until the beginning of the 1924 season when he became manager of the Chicago White Sox. His health again broke down and he was compelled to give up the management.

An article on the "Peerless Leader," as Chance was known, written by Harry Kingman, a former member of Chance's team, appeared in THE CHINA PRESS for November 2.

AMERICAN FOOTBALL

Many will be interested in watching the American football game, which precedes the Interport trial at Pioneer Field. This is about the only playing done in this part of the world in the American form of football (American Rugby), with the exception of inter-class school games.

The game today will be between the Shanghai American School team and the Yen Cheng College eleven, and will start at 1.45 p.m. Though the play is of course not up to American college standards, the youngsters put up quit creditable games worth seeing. The game is unique inasmuch as it is probably the only annual event anywhere between an American and a Chinese team in American football.

SECOND DIVISION GAMES

There are some good contests scheduled for the Second Division today. The Club 2d is due to meet Hanbury on the Police Ground in what should be an interesting contest. Hanbury has done pretty good work so far, and if they win from the Club team they may be considered in the running for first honors in this Division.

In general, however, the race seems to be between the Navy and St. Xavier's, with the Public School team as likely competitors. As will be noted from the table below, none of these teams has as yet failed to win a game. Today's matches are not likely to show much, however, as the three are pitted against teams which appear from their playing to date to be rather weaker than themselves. The Navy is playing the Deutscher Fussball Club, St. Xavier's the Portuguese, and the Public School the Jewish Recs, the last two games being at Hongkew Park.

There will also be a match between the Recs 2d and the Police 2d, on the Recreation Club's grounds.

The teams for the Hanbury-S. F. C. match, which is really the most uncertain of the day, will be as follows:

Hanbury School:

W. Ferguson, T. Sofoulis, W. Naughton, A Senna, F. Whittsack, B. Schwartz, P. Brown, J. C. Mc Donald, E. Waller, J. R. Mc Donald, and T. Symons. Reserves:—C. Brown. A. Parker.

Football Club: G. C. Large, G. J. Day, A. Loonis (Capt.), H. H. Nash, L. F. Payne, L. F. Stokes, F. Morton, R. Baxter, E. C. D. Andrews, C. N. Brown, and A. V. White.

Reserve: E. C. Barker.

ST. XAVIER vs. P. S. A.

St. Xavier's Football Club, who have not yet had a goal scored against them this season, are to meet the Portuguese Sporting Association in Hongkew Park. The Xavier team will be as follows:

F. Peterson, A. Hart, P. Oliveiros, H. Corte-Real, W. Favacho, A. Collaco, R. Favacho, T. Allan, T. Aldeguer, H. Hyndman, and A. Souza.

Reserve: J. Cruz.

The Portuguese will be represented by the following: T. Collaco, J. Lima, A. Gonsalves, V. Xavier, M. Sequeira, H. Ribeiro, G. Sequeira, J. Silva, F. Gutierrez, L. Encarnacao, and M. Ferreira. Reserve:—V. Costa.

The Public School will play their third game of the season against the Jewish Recreation Club, at Hongkew Park, represented by the following players:

Greenberg, Jesu, Favian, Brown, Moalem, Jack, Harrison, Kabelitz, Drake, Baring, and Tingle.

The Jewish team will be:

J. Greben; A. Kosolapoff, D. Blumenthal; F. C. Hale, C. Fuxman (Captain), W. Ismond; K. Gestkewitch, A. Ellers, W. Kosolapoff, M. Foox and L. Feingold.

Reserve: E. Whitgob and S. Abolnik.

The game between the Shanghai Recreation Club and the Municipal Police second teams should also be well contested. It will be played on the Recs' grounds, with the following teams:

S. R. C.:—J. Moalem; Tipton and Griffiths; J. Brockett, Marshall and Mahon; Pote-Hunt, Carlson, P. Madar, Hayward and T. Emamooden.

Reserves: H. F. L. Wilson.

Police: Hotchkiss, Robinson, Pridmore, McDonald, Munson, Goffe, Phillips, Read, Watson, Shephard and Jones.

Here's What Happens When Cop Meets Cop

The results of Greek meeting Greek have been quoted quite a few times since the words were written into history.

Yesterday Mixed Court learned what happens when cop meets cop.

Zung Ka-yen, river policeman at Bing Woo, was visiting Shanghai Thursday. He was not on duty. A traffic policeman, regulating scrambling rickshas, started toward Zung's ricksha. Zung grew worried, jumped from his carriage and started to run, throwing a revolver and five rounds of ammunition into a creek along Bubbling Well Road as he ran.

The Shanghai cop caught the Bing Woo cop and rescued the gun. Zung said the gun did not belong to him.

Mixed Court found him guilty and remanded him a week.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The report that the Hamburg-America Shipping Company had already ordered ten "Rotor" vessels each of 10,000 tons is incorrect. Experiments with the "Rotor," it is explained have not reached a stage justifying such large construction.

De Valera Released And Sent To Dublin

(Reuter's Service)

London, Nov. 28.—Mr. de Valera, who was arrested and sentenced to a month's imprisonment in the Second Division on November 1 for entering North Ireland in contravention of a Government order, has been released. He was motored to Adavoye on the Armagh side of the border and placed on a train for Dublin.

The Only Milk—
—Supply You Need

Remember that dealers make a larger profit on other brands. Insist that you be supplied with Carnation.

Thousands of housewives who now use Carnation Milk exclusively, first began its use in time of emergency. They quickly found that the full-cream richness of Carnation Milk makes it the safe, convenient and economical milk supply for every milk use in the home.

You, too, will find that Carnation is all the milk supply you need. It is just fresh, full-cream milk, evaporated to the consistency of cream. No sugar or preservative added. Nothing taken away but part of the water. It is pure because it is hermetically sealed and sterilized. Where you use cream, use Carnation just as it comes to you—undiluted. Where you use milk simply add an equal part of pure water.

CHINESE LODGE PROTEST AGAINST ROAD EXTENSIONS

Deal With Tuchun Chi Alleged In Letter Written By Country Folk

Firm protests against the extension of Settlement roads into Chinese territory are voiced in a letter sent by a group of country people residing in Fah Hwa Shang, Western District, to the Shanghai District Council.

The letter, which appears in a local vernacular paper, comments on a telegram said to have been sent recently by the district council protesting against further road extensions by the Shanghai Municipal Council.

"In the second year of the Republic," the letter states, "the demand was made that the boundaries of the Settlement be extended to the railway line, but this move failed because of the opposition of the Chinese people at the time.

"Since then, the Shanghai Municipal Council has extended its roads into the western district, although this action was protested against by General Ho Feng-lin, then defense commissioner for Shanghai and Sungkiang, and Mr. Hsu Yuan, who was then commissioner for foreign affairs here.

"Of late, the Shanghai Municipal Council has begun to construct six roads in the vicinity of Pah Hwa Shang to a point beyond the railway, thus acting in a reckless manner and impairing the sovereign rights of China. It is rumored that permission for the extension of these roads was granted by Tuchun Chi Hsieh-yuan through Mr. S. T. Wen in return for the action of the foreigners in driving away the political enemies of Kiangsu from Shanghai.

"We cannot bear to see our national rights taken by foreigners," the letter concludes, and urges the district council to make a hard fight for the preservation of these rights.

NEW HEAD OF FINANCE GIVEN BIG SEND-OFF

Minister Li Shih-hao Sails To Assume Office In Peking

A rousing send-off was accorded Mr. Li Shih-hao, the new Minister of Finance, yesterday when he left for Tientsin by the steamer Hsin Kong at the King Li Yuan Wharf. Over a thousand friends and well-wishers were at the wharf to see him off. The ship was dressed for the occasion while hundreds of thousands of fire-crackers were set off as the vessel pulled out at 11.35 o'clock.

Minister Li was accompanied by Madame Li and three secretaries, Chwang Pei-yi, Lu Kwan-fu and Hsu Ho-chun.

Among those who saw him off at the jetty were Mr. S. K. Chen, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs; Mr. Hsu Yuan, former Commissioner of Foreign Affairs; Mr. Yu Yah-ching, chairman of the Chinese General Chamber of Commerce; Mr. Loh Hsin-fu, director of telegraphs; General Ho Feng-yu, brother of General Ho Feng-lin; Mr. Hsu Jen-tsing, former Director of Public Works in Chapei; Magistrate Li Shou-tse, of Shanghai City; Colonel Yang Chi-tao, representing General Chang Yung-ming; Mr. Fu Siao-en, managing director of the Commercial Bank of China and a host of other prominent bankers.

Mr. Tu Mei-shu, former Commissioner of Finance for Chekiang, left on the same boat for Tientsin.

A brass band was in attendance.

Wedding

MOLONY—DAVIES

(China Press Correspondence)

Ningpo, Nov. 27.—Another wedding of city-wide interest occurred this morning in St. Paul's Church when Miss Monica Gwynne Davies became the bride of the Rev. Arthur Williams Molony. The officiating clergyman was Bishop Herbert Molony, the uncle of the groom. Both the bride and groom are members of the Church Missionary Society stationed in Ningpo, and the ceremony was the beautiful Church of England ring ceremony. The bride was beautifully dressed in a white satin dress with the long veil and train held properly in place by a diminutive train-bearer. She came in on the arm of the Archdeacon Walter S. Moule who gave her away.

After the ceremony the company retired to the home of Bishop and Mrs. Molony where everyone was given the opportunity to meet the new couple, and to view the many and beautiful gifts, and to partake of the abundant refreshments provided by the hostess.

After many pictures had been taken, the bride and groom started on their bridal trip of a short stay in Ningpo's Western Hills.

Mr. Bryant Gives Lecture At China Science Society

"Chinese" Camphor and Camphor Oil" was the subject of a lecture given by Mr. Percy L. Bryant, well-known in Shanghai as a chemist and writer, under the auspices of The China Society of Science and Arts, in the lecture hall of the Royal Asiatic Museum yesterday afternoon.

The lecturer mentioned several interesting facts in connection with the manufacture of camphor and its by-products and their uses. Camphor is found in the camphor tree after it has attained a great age. Mr. Bryant likened the camphor in the tree to the presence of uric acid in the joints of the human body and said that the tree did its best to get rid of the substance.

The places where camphor was originally discovered included China, Formosa and parts of Japan. In China it was always difficult to get camphor as it was formerly almost impossible to purchase camphor trees for the Chinese, especially in the rural districts, who were tree worshippers, held the camphor tree in particular veneration. This scarcity of camphor trees had a marked effect on the price of camphor and the by-products and the fluctuating scale of prices of camphor has often been sensational, the quotations varying sometimes in two weeks from seventy to two hundred taels per picul.

Mr. Bryant explained that in former times camphor was used for the preservation of bodies. Now, however, its uses are chiefly in medicine and as an antiseptic.

A detailed account of the method of distillation was given by the speaker who elaborated on the special properties of camphor oil. He related the difficulty of persons seeking the real thing to get it in China, owing to the tendency of the Chinese to adulterate the products of camphor. Tallow, beans and even sand were named as a few of the substances added by unscrupulous vendors to the pure camphor.

The camphor industry in China has until very recently been in the hands of Japanese who got a corner on the market by buying up most of the camphor trees in the country. Chinese, however, are coming back into the camphor trade, owing to the foresight of some Chinese officials who see the possibilities in the business.

Railroad Travel In North Still Chaotic

(China Press Correspondence)

Hwanghsien, Shantung, Nov. 22. —A trip which the writer recently took from Shantung to Peking serves to demonstrate the chaotic condition of railroad travel in North China at the present time. The first regular train from Tientsin to Peking on November 13 was crowded to the doors and it was next to impossible to get on or in the train. The trip required fifteen hours where formerly it was made in four. On the return trip on November 16., the train made fairly good time, it only requiring six hours from Peking to Tientsin. At Tientsin it was necessary for most of the passengers to leave the train on the outskirts of the city and make their way to the concessions by other means since the tracks were jammed with troop trains.

The Peking-Hankow line has been cut and has ceased operating through trains and the Tientsin-Pukow line is not operating trains north of Tsmantu. The hotels in Tientsin are jammed with people owing to the difficulty of travel to the capital and outward.

HOME PRICES HIGHER IN MOST LINES THAN HERE

Smaller Holders Selling At Great Loss--Drops In Home Prices Would Be Disastrous

By Geo. W. Missemer.

In going the rounds in commercial circles one finds that as regards the great majority of staples imported from foreign countries the position is somewhat as follows. There is little or no import at the present time owing to the fact that prices here locally are on the whole lower than the same goods can be imported for.

Take for instance, woollen piece goods. Speaking generally, Bradford prices work out higher than similar goods can be bought here for on the spot, and this position is likely to continue until the stocks that have accumulated here can be moved into consumption in the interior. At present no orders are coming from inland points except such small lots as the buyers know there is an absolutely immediate demand for. In hardly any point in the interior in this neighborhood will any wholesaler take the chance of importing a stock for any considerable period ahead, because there is no assurance either as to the security of the goods from depredations from armed forces, or as to exactions made by officials under the guise of extra taxes.

The situation mentioned above as regards woollens, applies also to the iron market. Ship's plates, wire nails, galvanised and black sheets, etc. are lying here in abundance, ordered half a year or more ago in the ordinary course of business. The owners now find themselves with the cargo on hand, and no buyers except speculators. So long as the prices abroad remain at their present level, and silver does not go any higher, the holders of these stocks are fairly protected as to the future, provided their purse is long enough to enable them to go without the capital that is tied up, or in case the cargo is in the hands of the bank, their credit is good enough for the bank to extend almost unlimited time for payment. But even in this case, the interest and storage charges prove a heavy burden, and all the smaller and weaker holders are forced to unload in order to get liquid money for daily expenses.

But there is no telling when prices in some line or other abroad may drop, and if this should occur at the same time as a rise in the price of silver occurs, then the position will become somewhat as follows. Still other dealers will be tempted to take advantage of the cheaper import prices and will bring in still further cargo which will be brought into competition with the stocks already here; this would still further accentuate the precarious condition of the weaker holders of the cargo lying here at present, and would, as a matter of fact, drive most of them to the wall.

A situation as above described as a possibility is just what happened in Japan about half a year or so again. The buying capacity of the Japanese following the earthquake was greatly overestimated and the result was that the warehouses were choked with cargo, for which there was no market. Later, prices in certain lines, for instance and particularly lumber, dropped, and still further large quantities were brought in by other merchants on top of that which was already lying there unsalable, with the natural result that the smaller holders of lumber were bankrupted.

So the holders of local cargo are praying either that security in the interior may be assured or that prices at home don't drop.

Cotton Market

Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son's weekly cotton market report dated November 28, states:

China Cotton.—The market has had rather a more active appearance during the past week and a further material advance has been established, with a more general interest on the part of the outside public which freely enlisted on the Bull side, while among the more professional element the improvement in values has induced the liquidation of a good deal of long cotton. The demand for spot cotton has been very good indeed, the largest part of the demand coming from Japanese exporters and local mills.

From the above it will be seen that as far as the general outlook is concerned, although we still consider a higher level of prices warranted by the legitimate surroundings; but at a time when bears are making their appearance and hammering prices down in sympathy with the unsettled political situation in China and tightness of the money market, we consider it prudent to advise more caution on the bull side than heretofore.

Yarn.—The market has been keeping steady during the past week, and prices advanced some one to two taels from last week's level. Some 10,000 to 11,000 bales of various counts and chops of local products have been bought up by Szechuen, Capton, Kiangse, Swatow, Wuhu, Chefoo, Ningpo, Newchwang and other dealers, and about 10,000 bales direct business with the mills have been recorded.

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co.'s cotton market report dated November 29 states:

China Cotton:—Spinners demand for the local staple during the past week, although not so pressing as was experienced during the previous period, nevertheless evolved a fairly large volume of contracts for near deliveries and prices with but slight fluctuations maintained a steady position, being restrained from any upward tendency, notwithstanding the incipient improvement in yarn values, by the fact of Mid-Americans and Indians continuing in a steady direction. The American Government Report of the 21st instant, indicating an estimated crop of about 18,000,000 bales, though apparently a bearish one, has thus far hardly affected to any marked extent the steady trend in prices and in close sympathy therewith the Indian market like-wise manifests a steady position. And while these markets show no material declines it may reasonably be expected that current prices on the domestic growth will be maintained with the presumption that such will be sensitive to any marked variations in the values of the foreign fibre. Tone of the Market, Steady.

Germans Fail To Embarrass U. S. Exporters

New York, Oct. 23.—As an official of an American electrical equipment manufacturing concern so succinctly put it yesterday, "American exporters are more scared than hurt" by competition from Germany in the world markets since the putting into effect of the Dawes plan. A canvass of twenty exporters at their convention yesterday failed to reveal one line in which German competition is growing stronger or is giving evidence of increasing in intensity in the near future. These exporters, who are usually in possession of what their competitors in foreign markets are doing, are generally of the opinion that the Germans have not done much in the way of piling up raw material or making other definite plans for trade expansion based on the improved economic condition that is expected to result from the Dawes plan and the German loan.

However, the Americans fear that German competition will be a big factor next year. In many lines during the period of inflation in Germany profits were turned back into plant expansion, even though it was apparent that the expended facilities could not be called into use for some time to come. Plant expansions were made primarily to put the rapidly depreciating currency into something tangible upon which a profit could be realised at some later time when more stable economic conditions would obtain.

In manufactures made of metal particularly it is the impression that Germany has tremendous facilities for production which can be called into activity when conditions warrant.

Americans Have Lent One Milliard Dollars This Year Abroad

Canada, Argentina, Japan, And Various European Countries Are Heavy Borrowers

New York, Oct. 25.—This year the United States has subscribed for fifty-seven foreign loans, totaling $963,500,145, figures compiled by B. C. Forbes, well-known financial writer, show.

The grand total for the year will probably exceed a milliard-and-a-quarter, and may reach even a milliard-and-half.

The total for September and October already has exceeded $480,000,000 and will unquestionably pass half-a-milliard dollars before the current month ends.

The largest foreign loan floated here this year was the $150,000,000 Japanese Government issue in March. Next in size comes the recently offered $110,000,000 German Government loan. Both were tremendously oversubscribed.

The Canadian Government's $90,000,000 issue, last month, takes third place. Canada and Canadians have been very heavy borrowers in the United States this year. In addition to the $90,000,000 issue there have been others of $50,000,000, $20,000,000, two of $20,000,000, $10,000,000, $9,375,000, $6,000,000, and others of smaller amounts.

Argentina also has drawn much capital from us. The government borrowed $50,000,000 in February $20,000,000 in March, $10,000,000 in July and $20,000,000 in September.

Among the other notable foreign loans floated have been $40,000,000 for the Netherlands Government, $30,000,000 for the Swiss Government, $20,000,000 for one and $15,000,000 for another French railroad; $30,000,000 for the Government of Belgium; $25,000,000 for the Norwegian Government, $7,000,000 for the Government of Peru and loans for various European cities.

(*A "milliard" means one thousand million, and in ordinary circumstances an American newspaper would use the word "billion" here, but as the British "billion" means a million times a million, the French word is used here to avoid confusion.—Ed.)

'Harriman War' Losses Revealed By Edwin Gould

New York, Oct. 30.—The Gould-Harriman railroad war, waged for the control of Western transportation facilities immediately after the Spanish-American War, was brought into the hearing of the accounting suit against the Jay Gould estate when it was resumed yesterday before Referee James A. O'Gorman in the offices of Taylor, Knowles and Hack, 165 Broadway. Edwin Gould, one of the trustees of the $82,000,000 estate left by his father, told of the inroads into the Gould fortune made by this battle.

Efforts to get Howard Gould, another trustee, before the referee failed, David H. Taylor, of counsel for the Jay Gould estate, reported. He read a cablegram from Howard, who is in Europe, saying that because of his ill health he would be unable to come to this country.

ASKS STATEMENT BY PHYSICIAN

Philip L. Miller, counsel for the children of Anna Gould, the Duchess de Talleyrand, asked that a statement regarding Howard Gould's health be obtained directly from the physician, and this was promised. The cablegram was an answer to one sent last week by Edwin Gould and his sister, Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, after Mr. Miller had demanded an opportunity to cross-examine the other brother.

A lack of family unanimity in regard to the second and third marriages of Frank Gould was admitted by the witness when he said that he had not consented to Frank's marriage either to Edith Kelly or Florence LaCaze, and did not know about them until after they occurred. Under Jay Gould's will any member of the family who married without the consent of the majority of the trustees forfeits one-half of his inheritance.

Edwin Gould admitted that Harriman loomed as a potential threat to the perfection of the so-called Gould system soon after his father's death, in 1892, but it was not until the beginning of the twentieth century that the financial battle brought about the collapse of the Gould ambitions. The trustees, he said, realised the stakes that were to be involved on the part of the Missouri Pacific.

DIDN'T THINK GEORGE AMBITIOUS

It has been brought out before in the hearing that it was George Gould who directed the warfare, and it has been charged that during that time he borrowed money from the estate to bolster the Missouri Pacific during the crucial days. In answer to a question regarding George Gould's ambition, the witness said:

"I don't know if he was very ambitious. At first that was my belief, but when he began to dispose of properties it showed to my mind that he was not entirely carried away by ambition. Otherwise he would not have disposed of properties over which he had control."

Later he said: "We all looked at the rosy side, more or less."

The witness denied knowing that the extensive railroad projects mapped out by his older brother would involve the resources of the estate, believing that bankers and the public would finance the scheme. When the project got underway, however, under the direction of George Gould, whom Edwin Gould admitted was inclined to take large risks, the witness said he was willing that the estate should dump money into the Missouri Pacific up to the time it went into receivership. He and Howard Gould were confident that their brother could steer the plans to success, he said.

M. B. K. MAY MANUFACTURE ARTIFICIAL SILK

"Rayon" Making Inroads On Foreign Markets—Output Reaches £100,000,000

Tokio, Nov. 20.—The investment of capital in the artificial silk industry in this country is now considered by the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, it was reported yesterday. Rayon is now in the ascendancy in the silk markets of the world and its future as substitute for silk yarn is certain. The Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, the heaviest silk exporter in Japan, is making thorough study of artificial silk.

Mr. Takemura, director of the Bussan Kaisha, was sent to Europe and America last November to make personal investigation of the real condition of the artificial silk markets abroad. Mr. Takemura's inspection abroad is considered a preliminary to the firm's investment in the artificial silk enterprise here and on his return home the firm will make preparations for investment on the basis of reports to be submitted by him. It is reported the firm intends to invest Y20,000,000 in the proposed industry under joint management of other silk merchants in this country. Mr. Y. Yasukawa, senior managing-director of the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha, made the following statement yesterday regarding the Rayon industry:

RAYON IN GREAT DEMAND

"The sphere of artificial silk has been largely extended now that it can be manufactured from material in the fibres of trees and the results are said to be very satisfactory. This report was only recently submitted to the firm and the demand for Rayon is expected to be heavier than ever not only in America and Europe but also in Japan. Artificial silk in the past was manufactured as an imitation of natural silk and this fact depreciated much of its reputation. Remarkable improvement was made, however, in the artificial silk production making it a distinct product and, because of its cheaper price, it is now demanded widely. The Mitsui Bussan Kaisha is contemplating producing artificial silk in this country by acquiring the patent right from the Government, the matter is now under secret investigation. If the enterprise promises well, the firm is ready to invest in it."

The demand of Rayon in America had been on the increase year after year. In the matter of price, hemp is 5.3 and artificial silk is 3 against 6 in woolen fabrics. Its materials were almost same as those of celluloid and it is far from being waterproof. Its use was hitherto limited to neckties, ladies' outfittings or other narrow spheres. The recent discovery that it can be made out of fibres of trees largely enhanced the value of Rayon, because it is now water-proof and is easily mixed with natural silk yarn and cotton yarn with good results. Moreover, it is cheaper than celluloid and consequently the sphere of use was largely extended.

USE INCREASING IN JAPAN

Even in this country where raw silk is raised abundantly, demand for Rayon is gradually increasing and imports are rising. Rayon imported to Japan from January to October this year totalled 230,366 kin, valued at Y829,294, an increase of 30 percent over the corresponding period of last year, according to a report prepared by the Yokohama Customs House.

"The Mitsui Bussan Kaisha recognised it as more profitable for this country to produce artificial silk out of the fibral materials than to import Rayon from America, but, since this method is protected by patent in England, Germany and America alike, the investment of capital in this special enterprise in Japan must be done under joint management of these foreign silk firms.

THREATENS SILK INDUSTRY

Japanese silk raisers as well as silk merchants in general hitherto cared little for the development of artificial silk in foreign countries but the rapid growth of Rayon business in recent years has opened their eyes. Every conceivable means is taken by them to check the importation of Rayon into Japan but they cannot turn the tide. Mr. Shimura, president of the Japan Silk Reeling Society, recently called the attention of the silk reelers to the fact that the rapid development of artificial silk threatens the foundation of the raw silk industry of Japan. We quote part of his speech delivered at the recent silk reelers' general meeting:

"Speaking of Rayon, the world's production reaches about 100,000,000 pounds, an increase of three times the amount produced before the Great War. This rapid development of artificial silk threatens the foundation of the raw silk industry. In both quality and production Rayon is now gradually encroaching upon the field of raw and, in reality, it is yielding much more satisfactory results than raw silk. It is, therefore, difficult for the Japanese silk industry to maintain a predominant position against artificial silk. The foundation of silk reeling industry must be made solid to oust artificial silk."

SHORTAGE IN RAW SILK IN JAPAN

It is likely that there will be a shortage in raw silk available for the first half of next year, states the Japanese Press on authority that it quotes as "reliable." This year's output in export lines is estimated at 245,000 bales, in addition to about 40,000 bales carried from last year, while the bales required till the fresh output is placed on the market next year are put at 285,000. Of this 130,000 had been shipped before the end of October, and 60,000 or 70,000 is expected to go out by the year-end. Thus the stock available from January next to the coming season is within 90,000 bales. In this circumstance, the raw silk trading for the first six months of 1925 will not come up to an average in value unless there is a sharp advance in price.

Messrs. Maitland, Fearon and Brand's exchange, circular for the week ending November 26 states:

The price of silver in London after touching 33 3/16d. has rallied to 33 7/16d. ready and 33 11/16d. forward, today's quotations, these being respectively ⅛d. and ⅛d. below those ruling this day last week; the recovery appears to be due to Eastern bear covering. New Tientsin Home Of C. E. & I. Lumber Company Opened

Tientsin, Nov. 20.—The China Import and Export Lumber Company, Limited, have recently moved into their new office building which is situated at the corner of Rue Henry Bourgeoise and Rue de Baron Gros, and within their lumber yard.

The building is a very attractive modern construction of two stories, is of re-inforced cement throughout, and fire-resisting. The woodwork and paneling of the entire building is of teak wood, while the flooring is of oak. The material used in the woodwork and flooring are the products of the Company supplied by their Shanghai mill.

On the first floor is the Manager's office, the general office, shipping department, and the compradore's office. Occupying the second story is the accounting department, and a spacious Club room. The Club room is to be used for the benefit of the Company's Chinese employees, and for entertainment of clients.

The entire building is modernly equipped and the rooms of all the departments are spacious and elegantly furnished.

BUILT IN 7 MONTHS

The building was seven months under construction, Atkinson and Dallas, were architects and Yah Hsun and Company the contractors.

The China Import and Export Lumber Company, Limited, have their head office in Shanghai, with branches and yards at Tientsin, Tsinanfu, Hsuchowfu, Pengpu, Nanking, Chinkiang, Wuhu, Kiukiang, Hankow, and Changsha; also agencies at Hangchow, Kashing, Huchow, Soochow, Wusieh, Changchow, Kiangyin, and Sienmuiao.

The Company's main sawmill at Shanghai compares favorably with any mill of its size in the United States, as to output and quality of work. The firm also maintain small mills at Tientsin, Foochow, and Hankow.

The reason for the building of the new offices by the Company were that they were compelled to surrender part of the space occupied by their former offices to the French Municipal Council, for the widening of the French Bund near the International Bridge.

The new building is of imposing appearance and adds one more to Tientsin's up-to-date structures.—N. C. Star.

Britain And Egypt

THE crisis between Great Britain and Egypt, while it shows signs of improvement, can hardly yet be said to have been passed, and a settlement is not at all likely in the very near future for the reason that it is impossible easily to reconcile the views of the two governments on the questions outstanding between them. It will be remembered that following the granting of autonomy to the Egyptians and the establishment of an Egyptian Parliament, point was added to the by no means new demand for the surrender by the British of their hold on the Sudan. Zaghlul Pasha, the premier, made that one of his chief points in his recent unsuccessful mission to London, and his failure in this respect undoubtedly added to the irritation which has been manifested against the British in Egypt for some time. Regrettable though it undoubtedly was, the assassination of Sir Lee Stack, the Sirdar, brought matters to a head, and if eventually a general settlement is secured it may possibly be that this unfortunate occurrence may be not entirely so deplorable as was at first believed. Following upon the death of this gallant officer, the British government presented a note demanding satisfaction with regard to his murder, and bringing to a head a number of the more important points upon which the British and Egyptian Governments have not seen eye to eye. The Government of Zaghlul Pasha immediately agreed to the demands for the punishment of the criminals, an apology, the payment of an indemnity of half a million sterling and a promise to prevent the disturbance of the peace by demonstrations.

So far, the attitude of the Egyptian Government demonstrated its willingness to do everything possible to make amends, but when the British went further and insisted on various requirements with reference to the question of the Sudan, the reply of the Egyptian Government was exactly that which, having regard to all that has passed in the last few months, was to be expected. To understand the position with some degree of clearness, it should be remembered that the Sudan has as much interest in the upper reaches of the Nile, as Egypt has in the lower, and that from the Egyptian point of view control of the whole of the river is to be desired. But the policy adopted by Great Britain in the matter of the use of Nile waters for irrigation seems to indicate that it was based upon the conviction that the Sudan was as much entitled to make use of the Nile as Egypt itself. Thus was commenced the project for irrigation in the Gezira cotton districts, but directly it was suggested that the upper Nile was to be dammed for that purpose, there was an Egyptian outcry on the ground that they might be deprived of some of their water supply by such an undertaking. It is to be supposed that the Gezira plan, as originally drafted, would not have substantially injured Egyptian interests, but Viscount Allenby, for the purpose of placating Egyptian opinion, reduced the scope of the scheme. That was a concession made at the expense of the Sudan, and quite possibly was taken as a sign of weakness upon which Egypt might very well presume.

The issue as between Egypt and Britain over the Sudan appears more particularly to concern those two nations solely, and the parties getting to arms length over the matter, Great Britain has thrown over Viscount Allenby's curtailment, and now adheres to the original scheme with regard to Gezira irrigation. The Sudan, should Egypt eventually accept the British terms, will regain control of its own army and to that extent will find an increase in the degree of its sovereignty. The other terms of the note deal with the position of British officials in the employ of the Egyptian Government, and the right of the British to protect all foreigners in Egypt. The note, on the face of it, does not seem outrageous. Britain still owes a certain responsibility to the Sudan government; it owes even more to itself, and with the present bitter anti-British feeling in Egypt itself, cannot afford to make any concessions which would weaken its position vis-à-vis the maintenance of proper and adequate communication between itself and the eastern dominions. It is because of this fact, that there is always a prospect of difficulty in that part of the world, and so long as the questions involved do not implicate any other country, and Egypt remains outside the League of Nations Great Britain will undoubtedly prefer to settle matters her own way, than submit them to the decisions of a World Court. For this reason it is a little difficult to see why Britain should be obliged to submit, what, after all amounts to a domestic question, to the decision of such a tribunal. Egypt is outside its jurisdiction, has never submitted to it, and can it now be claimed that it should have the same benefits as a country which had? Possibly, were a ruling given against Egypt, Great Britain or the League would be able to enforce it, but the point of non-interference by the League in domestic matter has been so emphasised by certain nations in the world, that Great Britain can hardly be blamed if she refuses to accede to a doctrine, which so many others are reluctant to adopt. Thus, while there has been a certain amount of bitter comment in the continental press, the assurance of the French government that it desires to do nothing which might be contrary to British interests may be taken as a most hopeful sign for the ultimate peaceful settlement of the whole matter.

America As A Market For Foreign Securities

AT the last annual meeting of the National Foreign Trade Council, the principal organisation in the United States interested in foreign trade, which was held in Boston during June, considerable attention was devoted to the position of the United States as a market for foreign securities. Among the resolutions adopted was one reading, "That American investment bankers when negotiating foreign loans should so handle them to further American trade and promote occupation for our people." In connection with the consideration of this resolution the practice of British bankers in co-ordinating loans and foreign business received much attention and although there was some objection raised on the part of bankers that their normal activities should not be interfered with by manufacturers seeking foreign trade, the resolution was finally adopted and made a part of the Convention's Foreign Trade Program.

In addition to this action the Convention went on record favoring the organisation of an American foreign securities corporation, the purpose of which would be to market securities of foreign corporations desiring loans for construction enterprises in the American financial market. Such a corporation to be composed jointly of banks and manufacturing enterprises is now, according to report, in process of organisation.

The great advance which has been made by the United States since the beginning of the World War as a world financial center and the problems which this has brought to American finance, recently was discussed in an interview in the New York Times by Mr. E. H. H. Simmons, president of the New York Stock Exchange. After calling attention to the fact that there are now G.$2,000,000,000 of foreign bonds listed on the New York Exchange, Mr. Simmons said:

"Perhaps the commonest objection to foreign investing—that our home Government and our domestic enterprises might be deprived of adequate capital through competition afforded by foreign countries and foreign enterprises—seems the least important of all, at least in the near future. American business, for the time being at any rate, appears to be amply provided with productive facilities, and not so greatly in need of fresh capital as to require all the annual savings of the country.

"Furthermore, there are deep-rooted economic reasons why America will probably continue indefinitely to prefer domestic to foreign investments. The present prejudices of Americans against foreign as compared with domestic securities arise largely from our economic self-sufficiency as a nation, and from the smallness of our foreign trade compared with our domestic trade. There have been nations which have to some extent starved their home industrial development of capital by investing too extensively abroad. Before the war, for example, over half the securities on the Paris Bourse were foreign. But the danger of such a situation arising in this country is wholly imaginary. The high coupons and high yields of most foreign Government bonds in our markets today reveal quite clearly the strong preference of the American investor for enterprise on this side of the Atlantic Ocean."

After reviewing the effect international controversies and political disputes have on the markets for foreign bonds, Mr. Simmons says: "One consideration frequently overlooked by investors in domestic bonds, which is of equal importance in the case of foreign Government securities, is to what use the proceeds of these loans are to be put. It is an historical fact that Government securities have been chiefly occasioned by wars. If the borrowed funds are to be used in repairing the ravages of past warfare, or restoring the borrowing nation to economic health and peaceful prosperity, the operation is, of course, beneficial to both the lender and the borrower."

Mr. Simmons also calls attention to the fact that investors are often without adequate information or vital financial facts relating to the countries in which their capital is invested. The investor, he says, "cannot wade through voluminous and confusing foreign statistics, or laboriously piece together intermittent and fragmentary bits of news. What we need is a frequent, accurate and simple summary of foreign Government revenues and expenditures, completely free from the juggling of fiscal figures in which foreign politicians occasionally indulge. The American investor ought to be in a position to judge the merits of foreign Government securities on some more adequate basis than mere blind trust in the credit of the countries in question.

"This wider diffusion of financial information concerning foreign Governments and their securities can be attained only through the active cooperation of the entire New York financial center. The most experienced American underwriting houses have already done a remarkable pioneer work in this direction, and their continued interest in the matter will be essential. The New York Stock Exchange, as an impartial marketing organisation, will give such assistance as it can. The American press has in the past few years made extraordinary progress in the more complete and timely presentation of foreign news. The time is already here when foreign securities are not a mere curiosity to our investing public, but an important group of the outstanding investments of this country. But if New York is really to exercise in a large and permanent way the functions of an international securities center in competition with the older markets of London or Paris, the need of making available to the American public dependable information concerning foreign financial matters is still great, and its importance to this and other countries alike can scarcely be over-emphasised."

Other Views Than Ours On The War In China

RUSSIA IN CHINA

(Ithica, N. Y., Journal-News)

Much attention has been attracted recently to the railroads in Manchuria, large northern province of China. Some time ago it was reported that the Japanese had given Chang Tso-lin, dictator of Manchuria and eastern Mongolia, who is at odds with the Peking government, permission to transport his troops over the South Manchuria railway. This is a line owned by a Japanese company in the southestern corner of Manchuria.

Now announcement is made from Russian sources that Chang, who has won some successes in his drive against the Peking forces, has negotiated a treaty turning over to the Soviet government administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

This line, nearly 1,000 miles long, is an essential link in the trans-Siberian railroad, since the journey through Siberian territory is not the direct route to Vladivostock, main Russian Pacific port.

The Russian imperial government built the line and controlled it until that government collapsed. Then came the Allies' intervention in Siberia, which involved control of this stretch of railroad. Now the Allies' troops, including our own, have been withdrawn and Japan has drawn back to the sphere of influence she established after her war with Russia. That does not extend as far as Harbin, the point where the line to Vladivostock branches off from the route to South Manchuria.

So under this latest treaty control of the Chinese Eastern Railway reverts to Russia. France, Great Britain and even the United States have claims against Russia which the Soviet does not recognise. Very likely the Manchurian dictator thought it best to turn the road back to Russia, which is his neighbor in any case, rather than run the risk of having other nations claim its control.

Since the Western powers do not care to see Japanese authority extended over Chinese territory and are not in a postion to back up any claims of their own with troops, this transfer seems likely to hold good. It is reasonable that Russia should have an outlet on the Pacific and direct rail connection with it so long as Siberia is Russian.

Manchura is often described as a region "nominally" Chinese. That description may have been true in the past and to a considerable extent today, so far as political authority is concerned.

One point should be remembered: China may be weak politically but she is long on population. Where the Chinese are allowed to go they swamp other races.

Russia bulked big in the Far East two decades ago. Japan bulks big today. Yet behind feeble, disorganised China is the persistent pressure of hundreds of millions of workers, farmers and traders.

TREATY ENGAGEMENT BY CHINA

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS:

Sir,—I concur with John Chinaman in reference to the views expressed and statements made by him in his letter of the 25th instant.

I advocate the registration, in whichever form, of Chinese citizens as foreigners and of Chinese vessels as foreign owned vessels by representatives of some small nations, which constitutes a serious breach of the Treaty and which is, by all means, contradictory to the law of their own nations, be rigorously scrutinised and determined by competent authorities.

China has rights to demand from the so-called Powers for adherence to the Treaty and for removal of any of the Powers Representatives, who abuses his accredited functions by violating the Treaty. Quite recently, I witnessed certain shallow draft vessels plying for hire between the non-treaty Stations in the Upper Yangtsze carrying colors of such nations practically unknown to the shipping world. A compradore of one of the vessels declared that ownership of the vessel is, in entity, Chinese, while the flag in use is held under lease rights.

It is said that a Chinese, who registered himself as a foreign subject is usually indulging in the gambling profession or in the poisonous drug traffic, while a Chinese vessel registered as a foreign owned vessel is often employed for smuggling of opium and contraband. The flying of foreign flags prevents searches by officers of the native Customs.

The Washington Treaty and the Opium Convention are of no avail, if the Powers concerned do not conjointly devise a means to nip the bud of the evil, which is growing daily in evidence, in view of the fact that the Chinese authorities have no jurisdiction over the foreigners, whose authorities have even dismissed their national dignity and have apparently treated such registrations as a legitimate road leading to riches.

Be it understood that registration of false document of sale, or of mortgage of vessel to foreigners can be easily brought to light, when processes of conveyancing are systematically analysed. Suppression of the registration practice means the elimination of all evils specifically incorporated in the several Treaties, the execution of which concerns all Great Powers, not China alone.

Disclosure of the names of vessel and of persons involved is not, for the time being, contemplated, as the statements, which are popular enough to the minded public, can be readily verified with the visible object by any person possessing a grain of common sense.

JOHN CHINAMAN II.

Cheerfulness Always Helps You to Win

Why let little defeats annoy you so much.

Losing a game of cards, golf, quoits or any other game hurts you and you think more about it than you should.

You have an over-desire to win and this causes your defeat.

Instead of relaxed efforts to play the game you are all wrought up.

Your brain is addled, your muscles are taut and you make a poorer showing than you do when you just do not care.

In any game in which you indulge and in which you are sufficiently interested to want to win, do not let losing a point cause uneasiness.

Your bread and butter is not at stake. Even if it were, you are sure to lose it, if you get excited.

It takes all the real enjoyment out of a game for yourself as well as for others to be so disgusted openly over your losses.

Be a good sport in your games, a good loser, but keep your head working.

Your daily work is a game in which Dame Good Fortune smiles on you if you take your medicine cheerfully and keep your head working.

Mysteries Of Earth's Various Poles

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"If a compass were held directly over the North Pole what would be the effect upon it?—P. B. B."

Its "points"—east, west, north and south—would all be blended into one—all would become south. The north end and the south end of the needle would both simultaneously point south, because south is the only direction on the earth's surface that exists at the North Pole, and the entire circle of the horizon there is a south horizon. Two men standing back to back on the pole would both be looking south, notwithstanding the fact that their faces were turned in opposite directions. South would extend all around them. However, there would be ways in which they could tell when they were facing particular places on the earth.

But you must not, as is too commonly done, confuse the north geographic pole with the north magnetic pole. According to my experience, there are astonishingly few persons, except those whose occupation requires that they should know the facts about these things, who clearly understand the distinction between magnetic north and geographic north.

The north geographic pole is the north end of the axis around which the earth rotates and the direction in which it lies from any point on the earth is true north. The compass needle pays no attention to this pole, but obeys a force which causes it to keep one end directed toward an entirely different pole, the north magnetic pole, which is situated at the northern edge of North America, about 1,200 miles south of the geographic pole.

If you go north of that point your needle will swing round, completely turning its back so to speak, on the true north pole, in order to keep the direction of the magnetic pole. So, too, there is a southern magnetic pole at the edge of the Antarctic continent, south of Australia, toward which the southern end of the needle is directed, and which is an entirely different thing from the south geographic pole, whose direction from any point on the earth is true south.

Now, if you could place your compass over a magnetic pole its behavior would be very different from that which it displays at a geographical pole. The needle would, if it were not restrained by its mounting, point downward toward the interior of the earth. It would no longer indicate any direction whatever over the earth's surface.

The magnetic compass is by no means the sure guide that it is generally supposed to be. Only in certain places, as for instance along the narrow and very crooked line drawn from Lake Superior to South Carolina, does it indicate true north, and west of that line east of north, and its declination increases with the distance from the line.

At Los Angeles the needle points 15 degrees east of north, at St. Louis 5 degrees east, at New York about 10 degrees west, and at Quebec 20 degrees west. But this is not the worst, for the declination is variable in a most extraordinary way. When Columbus set sail to cross the Atlantic he relied upon his compass to guide him, but he quickly found out that his trusted guide was deceiving him.

In Europe and along its shores the needle, as he knew, always pointed east of north, and he supposed that its direction was a fixed one. But when he got out in the middle of the Atlantic he found his needle pointing true north, and, as he continued to go on, it began to point west of north.

Now, that line of no declination of the compass which Columbus, in 1492, found in the middle of the Atlantic afterward slowly drifted eastward, and at the present time it lies across Eastern Europe. In the meanwhile the similar line crossing the United States, of which we have spoken, must have swept eastward from the Pacific, crossing the Rocky Mountains, and following the other, though keeping at a wide distance from it.

Between the two the declination is everywhere westerly, while outside of the area included between them it is, with certain exceptions, everywhere easterly. The swinging toward the east of the line (agonic line it is called), which Columbus encountered at sea with so much surprise, is indicated by records which show that in 1580, nearly a hundred years after Columbus's discovery, the needle at London pointed 11 degrees east of north, but the declination decreased until 1657, when the needle at London pointed true north, and by 1816 it had attained a westerly declination of 24 degrees 27 minutes. After that it reversed its course, the line of no declination drifting back again, and in 1915 the needle at London was pointing only 15 degrees west. The expectation is that by 1976 it will once more point true north at London.

Parrots Have Flown into Fashion's Favor as a Trimming Inspiration

Even since the daughter of Eve have taken to adorning themselves in many-colored raiment they have looked to the birds of the air for a certain amount of inspiration. They have sought to rival the peacock in his metallic green and blue splendor, they have learned from the magpie the smartness that lies in combining pure white and jet black, they have often paid the blue jay the compliment of copying his coat of soft blues and grays and blacks. Of late the pheasant has been much spoken of in fashion—the color of his coat being especially pleasing to present day taste—and one well-dressed woman recently wore a coat collar of pheasant feathers.

Parrots, mackaws, cockatoos, parrakeets, lories and all such similar feathered fry are at present in the full efulgence of fashion. The French dressmakers have favored them above all other birds of the air. It is Collat—is it not—who splashes an enormous green parrot on the front of a blue frock?

Milliners make charming use of parrots but they are seldom made of feathers. A clever way of making these birds is by means narrow, bright-colored ribbon, which is carried back and forth over a parrot-shaped frame work. These little ribbon-made parrots were used to decorate the high-crowned hat shown in the sketch as well as the side of the frock. On the purse of black suede is a parrot of silver, pierced with holes to suggest feathers and eyes.

Parrots appear quite frequently on umbrellas—so often in fact that it seems as if this little tropical bird must be regarded as an auspicious companion on rainy days.

Sometimes hats are trimmed with parrots made of colored beads, and these same bead-embroidered parrots are used on frocks.

Parrots made of two kinds of narrow striped twisted ribbon—head and shoulders of one kind, tail of the other. The purse is of black suede with a silver parrot of flat silver stamped with holes through it to suggest feathers and eyes.

WHEN YOU MAKE A LAMP-SHADE

When you buy a lamp it usually has an attachment at the top to hold the shade. Otherwise you buy this attachment and fit it over the bulb. There is on it, you know, a screw to hold the lampshade in place. A little round knob tops the screw.

Now if you want to make something decorative out of this screw arrangement, you can buy a decorative screw. These are made of brass with colored stone ornaments atop the screw part. For instance, a little brass screw and knob marked with Chinese characters, and then a cut and pierced disk of imitation jade. Or a disk of carved red stone mounted on a beaten silver screw. The whole thing really adds materially to the attractiveness of the lampshade. And it does not cost too much to be possible.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

Little girl, about to start
On the long and winding way,
What sweet hope is in your heart,
What has made your laughter gay?
Charm has been bestowed on you,
Shall it bring you good or ill?
When your world's no longer new
Will your glance be trustful still?

Little girl, your lips are sweet,
There is much for you to learn,
You must walk with wary feet,
Watching well at every turn;
You have loveliness, therefore
Men will offer gifts and praise;
Pathways leading to your door
Will be deep ere many days.

Little girl, the way is long
That is stretching out ahead;
You will need deep faith and strong,
Nothing else will serve instead;
Charms that those who tempt will prize
Richly are bestowed on you;
Will you look with trusting eyes
When your world's no longer new?

Little girl, the fates may deal
Kindly with you and be fair;
You may find no cause to kneel
Conscience-stricken in despair;
Trust is in your glance today,
Roses bloom beside your door—
Will your laughter still be gay
When your world is new no more?

Increase In Trade For American Shipping Predicted

Washington, D.C., Oct. 29.—Increased business for freight and passenger vessels operated under the American flag is in prospect, with the government fleet getting a large share, Leigh C. Palmer, president of the Fleet Corporation, said today upon his return from an inspection tour of inland traffic offices. Mr. Palmer said he found shippers generally were convinced that the government fleet and other American tonnage was now operating on a permanent schedule and many assurances that additional patronage of the United States vessels in the future were received.

"We look forward to a noticeable increase in tourist travel on American liners next year, due to the observance of Holy Year," President Palmer said. "This event, which is held every twenty-five years, will attract many travelers to Rome, and the United States Line ships are making a special effort to book passage of large groups of travelers who desire to make pilgrimages to the Italian capital. Additional attention will be paid to encouraging students' and veterans' tours. Special provision has been made to offer war veterans and their families an attractive rate to visit the battlefields of France and Belgium. Special rates also will be given to travelers visiting the Riviera and Mediterranean resorts this winter."

The Fleet Corporation head was impressed with the assurances he received from big shippers that they would book their exports and imports in American flag ships.

"I found upon visiting the Fleet Corporation's offices in Cincinnati, Detroit and St. Louis," Mr. Palmer said, "that the staffs are in close touch with shippers, giving them data on sailings and rates of government and other American flag tonnage. The shippers seemed impressed with the permanency of the American merchant marine and many informed me that their export shipments would hereafter be booked with our ships. Others gave me assurances that they would communicate with their foreign agents and suggest that wherever possible their westbound shipments would be booked with American ships. General satisfaction was expressed over the recent consolidations of services affected by the Fleet Corporation and this policy has had the effect of increasing the interest shippers have in patronising American tonnage."

U. S. Ship Owners To Discuss Profit Sharing System

Preference Plan For U. S. Fleet To Be Taken Up With Other Matters

New York, Oct. 21.—At meetings of the executive committee on national shipping policies of the American Steamship Owners Association, which will be held shortly, one of the principal plans to be discussed is that of Cary W. Cook, president of the American Hawaiian Line, for a system of profit-sharing to succeed the present Shipping Board policy. Another will be the suggestions of the National Merchant Marine Association for export and import certificates to be used in conjunction with legislation for preferential duties.

In addition to Mr. Cook's plan for mail subventions for passenger liners he proposes cancellation of the present managing agency agreement made effective by the Shipping Board, and the assignment of the vessels to private companies under an arrangement for sharing profits and losses. An outline of these recommendations, which has been circulated among members of the association, was obtained yesterday.

The central features of Mr. Cook's plan, which he has now presented in detailed form, is given in the following statement:

AID FOR PASSENGER LINES

"Name passenger and mail lines that should be maintained and decide the number of ships required for each line. Agree with Postmaster General on amount of mail subvention and make a contract based on speed and frequency of service for a period equal to the expected effective life of the ship.

"Offer the steamers and lines and mail contract for sale to Americans.

"Give preference to established companies experienced in such business.

"Assuming twenty years to be the effective life of a new first-class passenger and mail ship, a company operating such service finding it necessary to augument or make replacements to its fleet should, as an inducement to build, be given an irrevocable mail subvention for twenty years for that ship. Every and any new vessels to be built on plans satisfactory to Army and Navy as well as Secretary of Commerce so as to be efficient as transport in time of war.

PLAN FOR CARGO LINES

"Existing cargo boats to be allocated to Americans for not exceeding one year. No commissions or brokerages or other fees to be paid.

"The government to furnish the ship and equipment other than fuel and consumable stores and to make no charge for interest, hire, depreciation or insurance, and to take 75 percent of the net earnings for the year or until given up by the ship operator or until sold as hereafter provided as its full compensation. In the event that the operation shows a loss instead of a profit the government pays

CLINE HALL TO BE DEDICATED AT SOOCHOW 'U'

Motion Pictures And Drama Featured On Festive Program

(China Press Correspondence)

Soochow, Nov. 28.—Motion pictures and a dramatic performance are among the features found on the elaborate program which has been arranged by the faculty and trustees of Soochow University to mark the opening tomorrow of Cline Hall, the imposing new $100,000 building erected at Soochow to house the laboratories and lecture rooms of the departments of physics, chemistry, biology and mathematics of the University.

At the formal opening exercises on Saturday at 2 p.m. the principal address will be delivered by Mr. N. Gist Gee, of the China Medical Board, on the subject "Science in Everyday Life." Mr. Gee was for twenty years connected with the university as head of the Department of Biology and during his incumbency was chiefly responsible for building the department up to its present status.

A football game this afternoon at three p.m. between St. Johns of Shanghai and the Varsity team here opened the program. This will be followed tomorrow by motion picture films of a scientific nature at 11:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m., and a dramatic club entertainment at 7:00 p.m. In addition to the features mentioned there will be meetings of the Alumni Association and of its Soochow Branch, and a special meeting for the foundation at Soochow of a chapter of Phi Tau Phi, the "Phi Beta Kappa of China." It has been announced that the University buildings will be open for general inspection by the public tomorrow from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.

STARTED TWO YEARS AGO

Cline Hall, a four-story structure of reinforced concrete and hollow-tile, was commenced in November, 1922, just two years ago, as a part of the recent Centenary Campaign of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Of the $100,000 required for its erection, about $65,000 was contributed by the First Methodist Church, Little Rock, Arkansas, in memory of Rev. James Madison Cline, long a minister in Arkansas, whose son, Dr. John W. Cline, during many years as missionary in China was in close association with that church, and who at the time the offer was made was the President of the University. The building contains about a dozen laboratories, nearly as many lecture rooms, and has a commodious auditorium extending through the center of the first and second floors. The first floor is to be occupied by the Department of Physics, the second by the Department of Biology, the third by the Department of Chemistry, and the fourth floor jointly by the latter two with the Department of Mathematics.

Referring to the building, Dr. W. B. Nance, President of the University, said: "The furniture of the entire building was made by the Wusih Technical School, a part of the University. In view of the fact that our curriculum offers courses in premedical education, we received a grant of $28,000 from the China Medical Board for the equipment of the building, including the furniture, and an additional grant of $35,000 to be distributed over the next five years for general expenses, extra staffing, and additions to our University library along scientific lines." Dr. Nance added with reference to the question of premedical education that it was his impression that more of the students who had matriculated at Peking Union Medical College since its inception were graduates of Soochow University than of any other school.

The following special guests are expected to assist in the exercises: Dr. F. L. Hawks-Pott, St. Johns University; Dr. F. J. White, Shanghai College; Professor J. C. Thomson, University of Nanking; Dr. Hsu Wei Ta, Yale-in-China; Professor H. A. Bedient, Fukien Christian University; Acting President Zing Yang Kuo, Futan University; Acting President E. L. Mattox, Hangchow College; Professor E. M. Hanawalt, Ginling College; Rev. E. C. Lobenstine, Secy. for Higher Education, China Christian Educational Association; Professor Perry Wang, Kiangsu Provincial Soochow Technical College.

GENERAL COMMITTEE

The general committee on arrangements consists of Dr. Nance, Chairman; W. F. Keye, professor of mathematics; C. F. Wu, professor of biology; Peter Shih, professor of education; and Proctor Shih, Proctor of the University. J. W. Dyson, professor of botany, is general master of ceremonies. The complete program as given out by the University is as folows:
